Maryville business men, together with breeders of fine cattle and hogs, are planning an interesting visit for the southern states delegation of bankers, merchants and stockmen, who will spend the day here next Saturday looking at Shorthorn and dairy cattle and Poland-China hogs. In anticipation of their visit President Geo. Word is expected from the governor today or tomorrow advising whether or not he will be here. Arriving Saturday morning about 10:30 o'clock, dinner will be provided for the party, following which automobiles will take the visitors to Burlington Junction, where the Caldwell and Wilson herds will be seen and returning by way of Skidmore the Barber herd will be visited, while at Maryville the Bellows and Ogden herds will be shown them. OIL STOCKS UNDER THE BAN

Associated Advertising Clubs Denounce Promoters Who Offer Glittering Promises But No Oil

Indianapolis, June 18.—Not only is it unpatriotic for the promoters of oil stock selling schemes to offer their "securities" to the public now when every surplus penny should be invested in government securities, or in legitimate enterprises necessary to the winning of the war, but such companies, declares the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, are using deceptive methods and are therefore gaining the financial support of inexperienced persons who are sure to be disappointed in time.

The first of a series of special reports, describing the advertising methods of oil speculators, has just been issued by the National Vigilance Committee.

This report, which sums up what is to follow in a number of additional statements, is based upon a careful field investigation. The report explains that the committee appreciates the fact that the oil industry is essential to the winning of the war, but cites the fact that practically no oil has been produced by the concerns which have exploited their stocks—drawing a distinction between oil producing companies and oil stock producing companies. The special investigations of the committee showed that practically all of the ne woll development had been through the plan followed by existing producing companies, or regularly investing a part of their earnings in the trial of new fields.

A $425,810 HOLSTEIN SALE

At Sensational Auction Event at Milwaukee $106,000 Was Paid for a Bull Calf

The prices recorded make the sale of 175 Holstein-Friesians at the state fair grounds in Milwaukee, Wis., June 6-8, the most sensational auction in dairy cattle history.

Champion Sylvia Johanna, a bull calved last December, consigned by his breeder, A. C. Hardy, Brockville, Ont., realized the record price of $106,000, the purchaser being the Carnation Stock Farm, Seattle, Wash. His breeding (he is out of a world's record cow and by a distinguished sire) and his individuality excited the liveliest interest among informed attenders and prompted the spirited bidding which ran the price up to an historic height. The February bull calf King Wanderbelle Ormsby, bred and consigned by Niagara Maid Farms, East Aurora, N. Y., made $12,000, the buyer being Aldencrest Farm, Alden, N. Y. The seven-year-old cow Albina Josie, from Pine Grove Farm herd of Oliver Cabana, Jr., Elma Center, N. Y., was bought by the Carnation Stock Farm for $10,000. A. W. Green, Middlefield, O., paid $13,100 and $10,100 respectively for the four-year-old cow Idleaze Pontiac Lass, consigned by J. W. Vaughan, St. Johnsville, N. Y., and the eight-year-old cow Leafy Veeman De Kol, from the herd of G. A. Abbott, Cortland, N. Y.

Many good judges regarded the four-year-old Hetloo Pietertje, consigned by A. C. Hardy of Ontario, as not only the most desirable female in the offering, but one of the best individuals of the breed. She was purchased by the Lisle Farms, Inc., Lisle, Ill., for $12,750.

The 175 head sold made a total of $425,810, an average of $2,433. The thirty-six bulls averaged $5,138 and the 139 females $1,737.

GUARDS "GO THRU"

BEDGE FENCE TAKES PLACE OF TRENCHES IN DRILL

GET FEED "ARMY STYLE"

Members Entertained On Chautauqua Grounds Last Night by Non-Coms —New Captain to be Chosen

After last night's experience going "over the top" will have a new meaning for members of the Home Guards. Except that in this instance going "over the top" meant going through a particularly thorny hedge fence. At regular weekly drill last night Major Sisson directed that the men mobilize on the Normal campus for a raid on the enemy just beyond the hedge. In the absence of barrage fire and to forestall an attack the order was given to "go through." The movement was carried out with more or less celerity, individual avoirdupois being considered. When the last of the Guard had negotiated the hedge the advance to the enemy trenches was begun and a hand-to-hand conflict ensued, said conflict consisting for the most part in extricating thorns from tender skins and pinning up torn shirts.

After the enemy had been routed (and the hedge fence cussed) the Guard retired to their positions on the Normal campus where a feed provided by the non-coms was waiting. Served army style, each man was given a plate and fork and rations were dished out as they passed in file before the mess stand, the repast being eaten with great relish after the strenuous assault on the hedge. Following the return to the armory a clothes wringer would have been a welcome addition to the Guard equipment.

On account of Captain Paul Sisson of the Fourth Missouri state guard being selected major of the company a new captain of the company will be selected soon. There is talk of holding an encampment at Maryville of the local home guards and the companies at Albany, Mound City, and Rock Port some time during the summer.

FOLK HERE TODAY

FORMER GOVERNOR CANCELS HIS SPEAKING DATE TONIGHT

WILL COME ON JULY 20

Meeting Was Not Advertised and Senatorial Candidate Left This Afternoon for Albany

Former Governor Folk was here today, having come from Kansas City where he spoke yesterday. He was to have addressed a meeting here, but through some misunderstanding the meeting was not advertised.

Gov. Folk will be here later in the campaign—the evening of July 20—for an address to the Democratic voters of the county.

He received a number of friends at the Hotel Linville and took dinner with S. G. Gillam and A. S. Robey.

Gov. Folk expressed himself as much pleased with the outlook over the state and very confident of receiving the nomination by an overwhelming majority. He left at 5 o'clock for Albany where he speaks tomorrow.

Discussing some of the problems of the war Mr. Folk said:

"The American who is neutral now is guilty of treason to the public. Any man or woman not aggressively for the United States in this war must be counted as against the United States."

The former governor in his campaign is placing much stress on the state's need for river transportation. Said he:

"St. Louis, Kansas City and Missouri are discriminated against in the present adjustment of rates. No city or state can prosper as it should prosper until such a disadvantage is overcome. In the next two years there will be a readjustment of all these rates and there should be a weeding out of any inequalities. If I can be of service in aiding the people of Missouri to obtain that justice in transportation rates to which they are entitled, I shall do my best.

Says Railroads Kept Boats Out.

"The railroads have made a practice of suppressing water competition by making rates so low water carriers could not compete. Then when the water carriers were forced out of business the railroads would raise rates again, thus recouping what was lost. The individually owned or weakly financed water carrier could not compete with the great aggregations of capital composing railroad corporations and so it came about that in the development of the railroads our inland waterways were virtually eliminated as transportation agencies."

CITY WATER BETTER SOON?

Manager Dusenberry Says Filter Will Be Ready to Use Again In Two Days—Pumping 50-50 Now

With the condition of the city water still but very little improved over two weeks ago, and housewives beginning to get anxious, Manager Dusenberry of the water works said today that barring accidents the filter would be ready for use within the next two days, when pure, clear water will once more be turned into the mains. The last layers of sand and gravel were placed yesterday and today the new parts are being adjusted and it is hoped by Thursday to turn all the water used through the filter.

For the past two weeks half the supply of 300,000 gallons used by the city daily has been pumped from the sand points and the other half from the river. With the sand point water clear and the river water muddy a cloudy mixture has been the result.

Manager Dusenberry says he is of the opinion after having pumped from the sand points for two weeks that with proper pumping equipment the entire supply of city water is available from that source. The sand points, pumping from them half the time, have not shown a perceptible lowering and there appears to be plenty of water even were pumping to be continued without interruption. So far Manager Dusenberry has been unable to secure a man to pump nights.

Whether the board of public works will order the necessary equipment to pump a larger supply from the sand points has not been learned.

ITALIAN'S BLOWS GAIN IN STRENGTH

STRONG COUNTER OFFENSIVE IS INCREASING AND THE AUSTRIANS ARE HALTED

ATTEMPTS TO ADVANCE ARE PROVING FUTILE

On the French Front Calm Is Reported Today, the Allies Engaged in Minor Operations In Which Prisoners Were Taken

Rome, June 18.—Al lalong the line today the strong counter offensive of the Itallans and the Allied forces has brought the Austro-Hungarian drive to a halt everywhere. A special official statement given out last night said the Austrians had been unable to renew their attacks on the Piave aroung Montello and the mountains flanking the Asiago plateau, although they were continuing their attempts to advance along the lower Piave. The Italian attacks have incresed in strength and have gained important results, while everywhere the Austrians have lost heavily.

Rome, June 18.—While cannonading and reinforcing their shattered and beaten divisions in the mountains the Austro-Hungarians have increased their desperate efforts to break through the Piave river line into the Venetian plains. Violent fighting is reported in progress today all along a forty mile front between the Adriatic sea and the plains on the upper Piave with the Italians holding their own everywhere.

Tremendous efforts are being made by the Austrians to extend their slight gains on the slope of the Montello crest but their assaults were broken down with terrific losses under the artillery and machine gun fire and the magnificent resistance of the Italian soldiers.

London, June 18.—Further successful raids have been carried out by the British against the German positions at Albert-Moyonville sectors, the war office announced today. An attempt by German raiders to penetrate the British trenches near Villieres-Bretteneux was repulsed.

The American Boy and the War

Farm Craft Lessons for Boys Reserve Corps
—By J. M. Huston, District Farm Agent

Cultivating Corn.

Corn is the principal field crop of Northwest Missouri and the boys who are going out to do farm work will find corn cultivation one of their biggest jobs.

The main purpose of cultivating corn is to kill weeds. A second object is to loosen up hard ground and to provide a "dust mulch"—a thin layer of loose dirt to check evaporation of moisture. If the soil had been well prepared before the corn was planted an amount of cultivation sufficient to kill the weeds will provide all the dust mulch that is necessary.

It requires considerable skill to cultivate corn well. A careless man or boy will cover or plow up a good many corn plants in the course of a day's work and every plant thus destroyed means one ear less at harvest time. Since it takes only 100 to 120 ears to make a bushel you can see that with corn at $1.50 a bushel a few days' careless work on your part may cost the man for whom you are working more than your entire summer's work in worth to him.

Not only is it a loss to your employer, but it is a loss to our soldiers and to our Allies.

The main reason you are going to the farm is to aid in the production of food that we must have in order to win the war. If you are a good soldier of Uncle Sam, you will take pride in doing a smooth, even job of cultivating, killing or covering up the weeds without destroying any corn.

A good deal of corn is "checked"; that is, planted in hills so that the rows run both ways across the field. The corn is first cultivated the same direction that it was planted.

The second cultivation is across the field at right angles to the first. After the first two cultivations all of the ground has been stirred except a small spot a few inches square around each hill. The weeds and grass in this hill must be killed by covering them at the first two cultivations while they are small. Labor is too scarce to spend time hoeing corn and pulling weeds from the hill. If they escape the cultivator they use much moisture and plant food that otherwise would go to the corn plant for the production of valuable grain.

It takes considerable care and skill to cover these weeds in the hills without covering the corn. Even with the best of care you will cover a corn plant occasionally. When this happens stop the team and uncover it carefully. Often this can be done with a long wooden paddle without getting off the cultivator seat.

Adjusting the Cultivator.

Next to a careful operator the most important factor in good corn cultivation is a properly adjusted cultivator. Your employer will show you how to adjust the particular cultivator he uses. It is well, though, to become familiar with a few of the principles so that you will "get the hang" of operating a cultivator successfully much more quickly. The two common types in use in this state are the surface or "gopher blade" cultivator and the shovel cultivator. The latter is the one in most common practice and this is the one that in nine cases out of ten you will be called on to operate.

The shovel cultivator can be used in a greater variety of conditions than the surface blade machine but it is apt to do more damage to the roots when used in corn. A cultivator shovel must have the proper suction to cause it to penetrate. The suction is secured by the angle at which the blade is set to the surface. If difficulty is experienced in getting a sharp shovel to penetrate, lessening this angle or causing the blade to run a little flatter will overcome this trouble. If the shovel is set too flat, however, its penetrating ability will be greatly increased. These general rules hold for average conditions, but just what angle is best can only be determined by trial. Failure to penetrate may also be due to too much tension in the lifting springs.

Should the operator desire a light draft he should use great care in securing the proper set of the shovels. If set too flat they will have more suction than is required, a greater force is required to hold them at the proper depth and the draft may thus be increased. Shovels set too straight and forced into the ground will also cause increased draft.

If, in setting the shovels for light draft, one regards the way in which they handle the soil, they may have to be set fairly steep in some soils to yield a good pulverization and a little flatter in other soils. Conditions govern this.

Scouring also should be considered. As a rule, better scouring can be effected by setting the shovels straighter three or four inches deep. This rule does not hold true for all conditions, and at times must be reversed. If a rig jumps, skips or bobs along instead of taking to the ground and working steadily, one or all of the shovels are probably set too straight, providing, of course, that the shovels are all in good shape.

Throwing Out.

When all of the shovels of one rig the row the rig is bound to crowd are set to throw the soil to or from sidewise. If the main purpose is simply to throw the soil to or from the row with the front shovels this rig crowding can be overcome by setting the rear shovel in each rig to throw the soil in the opposite direction.

The rig frames should be run level, if possible, and thus raising or lowering on shovel should be accomplished by raising or lowering its shank in the rig frame. This means, too, that the depth of cultivating is materially changed, the rig may have to be raised or lowered at its front end, or the neck-yoke straps may have to be adjusted accordingly. The rig frame being out of level may cause the front shovels to run too deep or too shallow and is apt to affect the penetrating ability and lower the quality of the work.

The setting of the steel fenders depends on the condition of the soil, the number and the kind of shovels used, the height of the corn and the speed of the team. As a rule they should be set just high enough for a little dirt to work around the hills, but not so high that the soil can cover the corn plants or that clods of soil can roll under the fenders onto the tender plants.

It is a good plan to have the shields stand vertically when the rigs are parallel with the row; if they do not stand in this way the fender arms can be bent slightly with a wrench. It is also good practice to have the front of the fenders a trifle higher than the back and one and one-half inches to two inches farther apart at the front ends. This gives the operator a little advantage in guiding and lets fine dirt work closer to the row while the hills are still within the protection of the shields.

MUST GET RESERVE

LEAN YEARS MAY COME AND THE WHEAT WILL BE NEEDED

A SAVING NOW IS VITAL

Food Administrator Points Out Value of Surplus In Helping to Win the War—Do Your Part

Although the wheat harvest this year probably will be one of the most abundant in the history of the nation wheat saving must be continued even after this grain is harvested officials of the Missouri division of the food administration declare. The drain of man power from the farms and other industries will result in a decreased food production next year and the year following and a reserve of wheat is needed to tide over the lean years.

"A reserve of wheat is as important to us and to the Allies as a reserve of ammunition," said F. B. Mumford, federal food administrator for Missouri. "Not long ago a sudden shortage of ships caused a temporary holding up of flour shipments to Belgium and, brief as it was, a cut in the already low Belgian ration was the result. This is an example of the disastrous effect of keeping the Allies next the wall in the matter of food supplies. If we are to win the Allies must have enough food stored up to create a sufficiently elastic condition to absorb the shock of any sudden jar to their food supply.

"The 1917 crop, estimated to be seven per cent under normal in actual nourishment value, threw the Allied cause near the losing line. Had the decrease been 15 to 20 per cent the Allied cause would have been lost. A food surplus is the best kind of business proposition. The people of the United States generally are anxious to do anything they can to be of actual service in the winning of the war. We trust they will understand the necessity of continuing to save wheat and will not return to unlimited consumption of wheat bread."

MARYVILLE DISTRICT FARM NEWS NOTES

J. M. Huston, Agent.

Considering Organization In Atchison County.

A delegation meeting was held in Rock Port Saturday afternoon, at which meeting the feasibility of arranging meetings over the county to consider organizing a county farm bureau and securing a county agricultural agent was considered.

The movement was explained by Paul B. Naylor of the extension service of the University of Missouri and the United States department of agriculture, and the need for the county to organize under such a plan was brought out. The meeting went on record as being in favor of holding such a series of meetings in the county so that all communities could have opportunity to understand the movement.

A committee was appointed by Reed Scott, the temporary chairman, consisting of himself as chairman, Geo Sly and Henry Moore, which is to meet to arrange meetings that will cover the entire county.

Mr. Naylor will come back into the county to address these meetings, but at the present time he will work in Grundy county where they are anxious to get their organization put through. The meetings will probably be arranged after the busy season of corn planting, threshing and haying is over.

Smut In Wheat.

W. C. Gillis of the bureau of plant industry has been in the Maryville district since June 12 examining the wheat, oat and barley fields for the presence of loose and stinking smut, leaf and stem rust, scab and other plant diseases.

He reports the wheat practically free from loose smut, no scab to speak of and no stem rust. He found five to ten per cent leaf rust in some fields, but most fields are practically free from rust. He spoke highly of the yield and acreage of wheat in this district, saying that if all the counties hurried their farm operations correspondingly there would be no need for conservation as there would be an over-abundance of crops, more than enough for ourselves and our Allies.

He found from one to fifteen per cent of loose smut in oats and reported uneven ripening in nearly all fields visited. The barley showed about one per cent loose smut and traces of covered smut. He found the spring wheat in good condition and practically free from smut.

Field Certification of Wheat and Oats.

Dr. George M. Reed, plant disease specialist of the bureau of plant industry, was in the district Monday, June 17, and spent the day looking over the oats, wheat and barley of Nodaway county. He was pleased to find the fields so nearly free from smut and urged that all farmers with fields of wheat and oats that are free from smut, report such field for certification so that the purchase of seed may be made with a knowledge of the field condition of the crop from which the seed was obtained.

He found 100 acres of wheat in one field in Howard county that had from 48 to 55 per cent smut, which field would not be cut at all. Most smut percentages do not run so high, but the loss is high and can be avoided. Field certification is the only way to determine the amount of smut present and then the seed should be treated for smut in addition. It is a simple treatment and the returns are large.

Poultry Meetings and Demonstrations.

Ralph L. Mason, extension poultry husbandman of the bureau of animal industry, was in the district for four days, beginning June 11, and held instructive and interesting meetings and demonstrations in Nodaway and Atchison counties. Due to the rush of field work at this time he devoted most of his time to the securing of local leaders.

Since he has some forty counties under his supervision it behooves him to use all the available help he can get and he has planned to secure enough local leaders in each county to permit the whole county to be covered by meetings at which the purposes of the war program as it affects the poultry production can be discussed with intelligence under the leadership of these local leaders.

He is at work at the present time on the selection of these leaders and with two days more work in Andrew county will have the list ready for publication.

HIS MOTHER

If I might only think—he bears
A shining armor of my prayers
To ward the shadow of a shell
From his beloved breast,
And like the wings of angels keep
Away the nameless things that creep
Pleasure-masked videttes of hell,
To prey on his rare hours of rest!
But all my prayers and tears are vain
To shield him from a single pain.
One gift is mine to give, and one alone,
To my own flesh which is no more my own,
His parting look into his mother's eyes
Shall find so calm and absolute a trust
In the high cause that claims the sacrifice
That when the moment comes—as come it must—
When he asks himself: "Is it worth while
This dream I fight for?" then he can recall
His mother's faith, who gave that dream her all
And gave it with a smile.

Brown Sugar, Among Other Old Time Necessities, Now Found Best For Many Uses

"We must get out our old cook books and revive some of the things our grandmothers used to make," says Prof. Mary Rausch of the department of home economics, University of Washington, in commenting in that university's newsletter on the necessity that faces housekeepers of learning how to do without granulated sugar for cooking.

When the cook books that were printed in our grandmothers' day speak of sugar they do not mean the granulated sugar to which we are accustomed, but the heavier, dark, moist sugar that has a flavor resembling molasses or rum. For many purposes this is really better than the granulated white sugar. One of the largest bakers in Seattle uses nothing else, and he says the flavor of all sweetened breads is much improved by it.

Brown sugar or sirup should be used in all biscuits, muffins, cakes, puddings and pies. For years the best gingerbreads and spice cakes have been made with nothing else. And there are many candies for which it is better than white. A delicious cake icing is made by boiling brown sugar to a sirup and pouring it over the stiffly beaten whites of eggs.

Summer Salads.

Cucumbers are such refreshing vegetables and may be used in combination with so many other foods we need never tire of them. A different way of serving them is to peel them, slice in quarter-inch slices, then peel round each slice making ribbons. Heap these on lettuce, sprinkle with chopped onion and serve with French dressing.

Sweet salads of various combinations of fruits make most delectable desserts. Lemon jelly accompanied by figs steamed and stuffed with cheese, served either as a salad or as a dessert is delicious. Lemon jelly with various chopped vegetables molded in it is another good combination.

An Attractive Salad.

A pretty salad and one which will suggest various other combinations is this: Arrange two, three or four tender leaves of head lettuce on the salad plate and on each put a spoonful of a different kind of vegetable. Asparagus tips on one leaf, sections of tomatoes on another with celery and cut apple on a third, all well marinated with French dressing and serve with mayonnaise.

Pineapple with pecan meats is another good combination with which to stuff little ripe red tomatoes. Garnish the top with cubes of the tomato which was removed. Serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Cooked stalks of asparagus, three or four that have been marinated in well seasoned dressing, then thrust through a ring of red or green pepper, or a ring of orange or lemon, all laid on lettuce and served with a spoonful of mayonnaise make a pretty salad.

White grapes, grape fruit, a few nuts and mayonnaise served on head lettuce is a salad combination of which one never tires.

Berkshire Salad.

Mix two cupfuls of cold riced potatoes with a cupful of pecan meats, broken in bits; marinate with French dressing, arrange on a mound of water cress and serve, garnished with halves of pecan meats.

Potato, almonds, a few cucumber cubes, a bit of onion and a good boiled dressing make a most dainty salad.

Where Prices Are Really High.

Berne reports that Constantinople is reduced to economic ruin. The Germans, with the consent of prominent young Turks, have requisitioned the food, while uncontrolled speculation makes the city the most expensive in the world to live in. A two-pound loaf of bread costs $5; meat $4 a pound, flour $5, potatoes $2, butter $16, and sugar $10. Eggs are rare at 50 cents apiece, chickens are $9 each, and shoes from $10 to $200 a pair. A man's suit costs from $100 to $4,000.

SELLS MUSTACHE FOR RED CROSS

Smith Center, Kans., June 18.—Personal adornments offered for sale at a Red Cross auction here bring the top price. The other day in the little town of Claudell near here the mustache which has adorned the upper lip o. John Gaumer, a hardware merchant, for forty years, was sold for $24.65.

Gaumer proved his gameness by being submissive when the shears were applied.

"You'll have to go with me to the house and square matters with my wife," he told the crowd. A man went. The wife was "squared."

WATCH YOUR GARBAGE CAN.

The United States food administration makes an urgent appeal to every housewife that all garbage cans be carefully watched. According to figures given out one ton of garbage contains sufficient glycerin for the explosive charge for fourteen 75-millimeter shells; sufficient "fatty acid" for the manufacture of 100 12-ounce cakes of soap and sufficient fertilizer elements to grow eight bushels of wheat.

That housewives be careful of what goes into the garbage can and what must go in be separated from other household refuse is requested.

FATHER AT WAR, TRAGEDY AT HOME

Just What Home Service Means to a Soldier.

The father kisses his wife and kiddies goodby, shoulders his gun and marches away to war.

For a time the current of life flows smoothly for the soldier's little family. Then comes the tragedy. Mother is taken ill. The little brood of brothers and sisters is helpless. No father to turn to. A helpless mother!

To whom can the American soldier's family look at this critical period? Must a brave man's loyalty to his country mean desolation and suffering to those nearest and dearest to him?

No! Emphatically no! The American people will not permit the families of their soldiers and sailors to suffer because their breadwinners are fighting for their country. And so the Red Cross Department of Civilian Relief has created a nation-wide organization for home service for the families of soldiers and sailors.

Under the banner of "Home Service" patriotic men and women have enrolled and are devoting themselves to the noble task of helping soldiers' families to meet and adjust the problems of everyday life and aiding them to maintain the standards of health, education and industry.

Home Service—True Service

Home service means keeping the soldier's children well and in school. It means tiding the family over financial troubles, arranging the household budget, meeting insurance premiums, adjusting a mortgage, bringing medical aid and legal advice to bear at the right moment. In short "Home Service" is true service, in that it provides the warm handclasp of friendship rather than the humiliation of charity. It calls for sympathetic understanding and intelligent consideration of the most vital needs of the soldier's family.

The Red Cross is pledged to "Home Service" wherever needed in the United States. In each chapter of the Red Cross there will be a home service section, under competent hands, whose mission will be to protect the welfare of the soldiers' and sailors' homes and to safeguard the normal development of their families in employment and in ideals of self help and self reliance.

"The work that the Red Cross is doing in France this winter is worth more than a million and a half American soldiers in the lines in France today."

LET POTATOES AID IN SAVING WHEAT

IF MORE SPUDS ARE EATEN LESS WHITE BREAD WILL BE NEEDED.

HUGE EXCESS NOW ON HAND

Food Administration for Missouri Urges Everyone to Increase Use of Tubers.

Let potatoes save the wheat. By eating the homely and plentiful spud instead of the more precious wheat the people of Missouri can help win the war, just as they can help by purchasing Liberty Bonds and contributing to the Red Cross, F. B. Mumford, federal food administrator for Missouri, declared recently.

"The situation is this," said Mr. Mumford. "There is not enough wheat for the Allies and ourselves. We have an abundance of potatoes, an excess of 90 million bushels over normal times. If we are to win this war the people of the Allied nations must have wheat. The potato cannot quite come up to wheat in food value but it does come as close to taking the place of wheat as any other food. So by eating potatoes we can save wheat for the Allies.

Native of This Continent.

"Like corn, the potato is a native of this continent and is as thoroughly American as the American Indian. The potato is one of the chief foods now sustaining Germany, while the other European countries are largely dependent upon it. Yet the potato was not known abroad until the end of the Sixteenth century, when both the English and the Spanish introduced it from their American colonies."

Although the potato is a native vegetable, the American per capita consumption is very low, averaging only about one-half that of Europe. This is due largely, it is said, to the fact that bread has always been high abroad and low in this country. The higher price of bread in this country is expected to cause the people to turn more to the potato.

Less White Bread Needed.

While approximately three-fourths of the potato is water, it contains enough valuable food substances to entitle it to a place among foods. A small potato of from three to four ounces supplies as much starch as a large slice of wheat bread, but not as much protein. The more potatoes eaten the less white bread is needed. In making ordinary bread and rolls potatoes can be substituted for about one-fourth of the wheat flour.

MARKET ALL WHEAT NOW

Imperative that Every Surplus Bushel Be Moved, Says F. B. Mumford.

An order to the farmers in Missouri to market their wheat immediately has been issued by F. B. Mumford, federal food administrator for Missouri. The order follows:

"The United States government finds it necessary to call on all farmers now having wheat to market this wheat immediately. The demand for supplies for our soldiers fighting in France and for our associates in this war makes it imperative that every surplus bushel of wheat now in the hands of farmrs be placed on the market immediately.

"All farmers now having wheat which is not needed for seed or for family needs, no matter how small an amount, should place it on the market at once.

"Persons who for any reason are unable to comply with this order must report to the office of the federal food administrator, Columbia, Mo. When such reports are received they will be carefully investigated.

"Farmers should not hold back their wheat and by so doing compel the government to requisition the crop. Missouri farmers are patriotic and this suggestion as to the imperative needs of the government at this time will be sufficient to cause all patriotic farmers to put their wheat on the market at once."
